Richardson is declared elected in Lisgar by 43 majority.

Silverites are likely to win in the United States democratic convention.

The recent in Regina is proceeding. Candidates are now even with a number of ballots still to be argued.

Tupper and his government resigned last evening at 5:30 and a special messenger was sent by Lord Aberdeen to Arthursburgville to summon Laurier to form a government.

A hitch arose between Lord Aberdeen and Tupper. The governor-general refused to sign orders-in-council making a large number of appointments. A compromise was reached by His Excellency signing minor appointments, but he refused judgeships and senatorships.

Emery prosecuted for the crown and J. C. F. Bown defended the prisoner. Five witnesses were examined for the prosecution. The evidence of a boy named Demo stated that coal oil had been spilled or poured on the floor. The prisoner was committed for trial, bail being refused, as the charge was too serious for one justice to grant bail, which may, however, be done by the judge.

A. L. BRICK, of Lawrence, G. Young, F. A. Brick and L. Short arrived on Monday from Peace River. A. Brick and L. Short put their furs up for competition. Short had a very successful winter in bear hunting and brought a number of fine skins in.

He has been very successful in his hunting. When putting his gun into the case on one occasion the trigger was open. It caught in the case and caused a cartridge to explode, the lead going into the ground within an inch of his foot.

W. SWART, the barriester, had an exciting quarter of an hour on Tuesday afternoon.

He had a team from Kelly's stable hitched up to drive a lady friend to St. Albert. The horses were large and the buggy wheels knocked their heels when they were started, at which they took fright and ran off down Jasper avenue at full speed. Fortunately the street was clear and Mr. Short guided the runaway along the St. Albert road, but they had gone two miles before he could pull them in. His companion showed wonderful courage and took the matter as coolly as Mr. Short himself. No damage was done to any portion of the harness or rig and after pulling up the team Mr. Swart continued his drive to St. Albert and back.

G. MARTIN arrived in town Monday evening from near Fort Resolution where he has been hunting and trapping all winter. His furs were placed in the Alberta hotel and competed for by the buyers. He expressed himself much disappointed at the prices realized here as they are much lower than have been paid all the winter at Fort Resolution. Fur has been plentiful all through the trapping season especially for fox and marten. The Chipewyan Indians have been increasing in that district during the last few years. They are self-supporting and are good hunters and trappers. Between the Landing and Fort Smith, a distance of about 500 miles poison has been laid in quantities, and the Indians frequently complain that white men are causing considerable injury to them by carelessly leaving poison on their hunting grounds.

WESTERN DEVELOPMENT.

The Free Press of a recent issue honors the editor of the BULLETIN in his new capacity as representative of Alberta with half a column of editorial criticism in the course of which it kindly intimates that in stating that the electors of Alberta condemned the conservative government for their "neglect of the work of development of this country" he must be either prejudiced or ignorant; and goes on to declare that the conservative policy regarding the Northwest was ever one of progress while the liberal policy was ever one of obstruction, and particularly calls attention to Sir Charles Tupper's Northwest policy as announced in his Winnipeg speech, of which it says: "That was a Northwest policy the like of which it is extremely improbable we shall ever have the second opportunity to reject." Just in support of the proposition that the people of Alberta had good reason for voting as they did, let it be understood that the question before them was, What was the active policy of the conservative party towards the Northwest and what were the results of that policy?—not, What were the promises of the conservative party or the prospects which it held out, nor yet what was the policy of the liberal administration of eighteen years ago or the individual expressions of members of the liberal party since that time! It was the conservative party and policy that was on trial and upon their merits the verdict was rendered. At the time of the election contest it was not known that the liberal party would come to power, nor did it matter in the result. When the liberal party have had a fair opportunity to develop a Northwest policy, if they have not succeeded in producing a more satisfactory and effective policy than that of the conservative party, they will be condemned by the people of Alberta and the Territories generally as have the conservative party. So much as to the theory. Now as to fact. Will the Free Press or anyone else point out the work of development of the Northwest which has been in progress during the past three years under the conservative government. Show us the railway extensions constructed, the telegraph lines built, the public improvements made, show us the attempts that have been made to relieve the Territories from the railway and land monopolies that are to us the chief fruits of the vigorous policy of western development which was the pride and boast of Sir John Macdonald and Sir Charles Tupper when his colleague. Even the policy of development for the benefit of monopoly, which was the star policy of the liberal conservative party, died with Sir John Macdonald, and was buried out of sight by Sir John Abbott, Sir John Thompson and Sir Mackenzie Bowell. As a matter of fact the "liberal" conservative party and policy died with Sir John Macdonald and we have had since simply a "conservative" policy regarding the Northwest. On this point the evidence of the new member for Winnipeg may be taken. During his western trip he announced from nearly every platform that he resigned from his former seat in parliament for Winnipeg because he could not support the conservative government in their failure to take active means for the development of the West, and could not as a party man vote against them. The people of Alberta took a somewhat different view. They could not support the conservatives in their failure to develop, but their party feeling were not so strong as to prevent them from voting against the policy of which they did not approve when the opportunity offered. As to Sir Charles Tupper and his buncombe speech at Winnipeg, his word in regard to western development was no better than his word as to remedial legislation. He talked simply to elect Hugh John Macdonald in Winnipeg just as he talked to catch the Quebec vote. The difference in result was that Winnipeg suckers were the more easily caught. No doubt Sir Charles had a most vigorous Western policy when he was electioneering in the West, but what of his western policy as expressed in his address issued to the electors of all Canada? That address contained no reference near or remote to the existence of the West, much less to its development. That address was the platform upon which Sir Charles stood for re-election and that was the address which bound him to a policy, in so far as a man of his principles could be bound to anything. That address left the West out of his calculations, and the West left him out of its calculations. One buncombe speech even by Sir Charles Tupper does not pay the West for the high price of supplies, the low price of produce, the high railway rates, the untaxable railway lands, the isolated settlement, the vexatious timber regulations, the commercial stagnation that exists throughout the Territories under recent conservative rule. The people saw that a change was necessary and they took means to bring about a change. Abuse or misrepresentation of the people or their representatives by the Free Press for the choice they have made will not help either that journal or its owners. The task of developing the West was specially placed in their hands in 1880. The day of reckoning has come.

The Regina Standard gives a statement as to the election count in Western Assinibolia showing a vote of 1,500 for Davin and 1,498 for McInnis, with 29 rejected ballots. The Standard claims that if these rejected ballots are counted according to the intent expressed McInnis will have a majority of 12 over Davin. A recount will no doubt be held, so that the election is not yet decided. Even if Mr. Davin retains his present narrow majority, the result of the count is a moral defeat for the government candidate. With the Dominion government influence centred at Regina in his favor, and the advantage of partizan enumerators under an election law specially framed to return government supporters he has only been able to balance—or to slightly over-balance—the adverse vote of the producers of the district. This proves that the producers of Western Assinibolia are in line with those of the rest of the Territories in their estimates of the benefits of monopoly government, and have emphatically demanded a change government by and for monopoly to government by and for the people.

WILFRID LAURIER.

The Vancouver World in an exhaustive while says: By all odds the most striking figure in Canadian politics to-day is the Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, the dapper French-Canadian, who, in all likelihood, within a few hours, possibly before these lines are read, will become, as leader of the liberal party, premier of Canada, a man whom everybody in the land acknowledges to be masterly. No individual who has heretofore figured in Dominion politics, or public life, has so completely captivated the masses. As is well known our new prime minister, was born at Linn, in the province of Quebec, on Nov. 20, 1841. His father, M. Carolus Laurier, was a provincial land surveyor, and a man who, with parental zeal, devoted himself to the development of those latent talents which were the prophecy of the great future awaiting the son. The father lived to receive his reward in the success of his son. When 13 years old, the boy, Laurier, was sent to the college of L'Assomption, in Montreal, where, it is told, school discipline failed to keep him out of the courtroom, wherein when missed he could always be found listening to the legal contests then going on. At this time responsible government was in its experimental stage and public meetings were the order of the day. At these meetings young Laurier was generally an interested attendant. So it would seem he had a natural love for both law and politics. The year 1860 found him studying law in the office of the Hon. Rudolph Laframée, a staunch liberal of the old school, and it is a coincidence worthy of mention that 14 years later the student and his preceptor became colleagues in the government of the Hon. Alexander Mackenzie. In 1861 he obtained his degree of B. C. L. at McGill university, Montreal, and a twelve month later he was called to the bar of Lower Canada. In 1868 he married Miss Lafontaine, a charming girl, who has proved a devoted wife and a delightful leader. As the leader of the social wing of the liberal party, a position as difficult to fill as it is necessary, seeing that society is so great a factor in parliamentary life at Ottawa, Madame Laurier has proven herself as popular and clever in her role as her husband has in his. At her receptions given at intervals throughout the season, she greets conservatives with the same friendliness bestowed upon her own party, and in all the amenities of social life she takes no account of political bias.

The home of the Lauriers is in a little town with a name almost as long as the place itself, half way between Montreal and Quebec. Arthabaskaville can boast of only 2,000 inhabitants, not counting Monsieur and Madame Laurier, who, in political and social importance, count as much as the entire 2,000. Being a court centre this small place supports a 11 law firms, the leading firm being that one in which Mr. Laurier is partner. Whatever his success at the bar may have been, it was early interrupted by his being urged to stand for his district, and the trend of his ambition being in the direction of public life he accepted the nomination, and at the provincial election of 1871 he was sent to represent Drummond and Arthabaska. He was at this time not 30 years old, and was called the debutante of the new legislature. With his very first speech he "brought down the house." His advancement into the foremost ranks of provincial debaters could mean nothing else than his speedy introduction into federal politics and three years later he was elected to the House of Commons. His fame had preceded him. In the fall of 1879 he became a member of the Mackenzie administration as minister of inland revenue. With the defeat of that government in 1878 he went into opposition where he remained as Mr. Mackenzie's first lieutenant and afterwards as Mr. Blake's, until the latter, in 1889, resigned the leadership of the liberal party. When that event occurred it was Mr. Blake's distinct wish that his successor should be Mr. Laurier, a sentiment which was generally endorsed by the leaders and prominent men of the party. However, there were some who feared to have the successship fall to a Frenchman, and a Roman Catholic at that. But time and events have proven the pulse of sectional prejudice is growing weaker day by day, and on no account whatever are there any fears for M. Laurier. No man in Canadian politics has a higher reputation for purity. Scandal imputes to him no vice and calumny has never connected his name with corruption. Some one who knows him well in writing of him said: "He combines in himself what was most conspicuous in Fox and Pitt. Like Fox he has a warmth and softness of heart, an ever ready sympathy with human suffering, and an admiration for everything that is good and beautiful. Like Pitt he is a man of high intrepidity and commanding spirit, incapable of fear and envy, yet unlike him inasmuch as he is guilelessly unconscious of his own rectitude and intellectual superiority. His foresight is seen in his early speeches, directed as they were toward a patriotic unity of the French and English races. The career of M. Laurier during the last few years is so well known to our readers that a recapitulation of it is needless. Mr. Laurier's conduct in the House last session elevated him immensely in the estimation of the people of Canada. In a brief time now he will be called upon to occupy the most exalted position in the gift of the people of his native land—a position he will fill with dignity to himself and credit to the country.

GENERAL NEWS.
It is said that Senator McInnes will succeed Hon. E. Dewdney as lieutenant-governor of British Columbia.

An influential French company has sent out an agent to Canada to arrange for the shipment of Canada horses and butter to France.

The Standard prints a dispatch from Bulawayo, saying a brother of Dr. Jameson, leader of the raid in the Transvaal, was among those killed by the Matabeles.

Last Thursday morning in Winnipeg William Warren killed his wife by cutting her throat with a razor and then committed suicide with the same instrument by cutting his own throat.

An Ottawa dispatch of July 4, says: Justice Burbridge has made a report to the government to give $40,000 to Connolly Bros. in connection with the Kingston graving dock dispute. Burbridge was the commissioner in the case.

In the event of Tupper holding on to the reins of government for some time, Mowat will probably return to Toronto and await a further summons from the leader, and then resign the premiership. Hon. Mr. Hardy will be long here the opportunity he has for years anxiously awaited, that of forming a government in Ontario.

Advice received from Shanghai show that disorders are rampant in different parts of China. The Mussulman rebellion in the northwestern district of Kansu has reached the gravest proportions. The secret societies in the country are again exciting the natives against the Europeans. Famine and plague are also reported to be raging in the southern province of China.

A dispatch from Madrid of July 2nd, says: Senor Canovas Del Castillo, the premier in discussing the difficulties which the Cuban parties have created for the government, said that they would have accepted autonomy for Cuba before the outbreak of the insurrection but though the government was still favorable to reform, these could not be made the price of the ending of the rebellion.

Among the Indians implicated in the Frog Lake massacre of the 1885 rebellion were three who had escaped to the United States, and who for ten years evaded capture. They were Little Bear (son of Big Bear), Lucky Man and another. They have been living with the refugee crees in Montana, and when these crees were some days ago driven at the point of the bayonet by a troop of American black cavalry back into Canada, those three Indians were driven along. To escape trial and punishment one shot himself. Little Bear and Lucky Man were placed under arrest at Lethbridge and committed to trial on the charge of murder. They were brought to Regina in irons on Monday, and are now at the Barracks guard room.—Regina Leader.

The Toronto correspondent of the Winnipeg Tribune says: The following correspondence containing an expression of the mind of the new premier upon the tariff revision will be read with interest: D. Gunn Bros. & Co., packers and provision merchants of Toronto, wrote to Laurier, asking about the tariff changes. Laurier replied, "I can renew to you after the fight, the assurance I gave during the fight. The tariff will not be considerably tampered with, but due consideration will be given to all interests. I would also like to impress upon the business community that no hasty change is to take place, and no opportunity should be lost in developing trade in every direction during the coming season."

A Toronto telegram of June 29 says: There is much speculation among post office and custom house employees as to when Sir Charles Tupper will resign, as the question whether their salaries will be paid on time next month is involved. After tomorrow night, when the civil servants in the pay of the Dominion government will receive their salaries for June, the government is not empowered to expend one cent more, supplies having been voted only until June 30. If Mr. Laurier is able to meet the house on the 16th with a government formed and re-elected, it may be possible to pass the supplies in time to pay the civil service for July. If, however, Sir Charles Tupper waits until he is out of power, it will be the middle of August before Mr. Laurier can pass the supplies, and the post office and other employees will have to wait two months before another salary day comes round.

A despatch from Lima, Peru, of July 2nd, says: Revolution has broken out at Sucre (Chiquiza) an important city which was the capital of Bolivia until 1899. Sucre is the capital of the department of Chiquiza and has a population of about 20,000, the great bulk of which are Indians. The department of Chiquiza has a population numbering over 350,000. The city of Chiquiza is situated on a small plateau above Rio de la Plata and immense treasures were formerly carried across the river at that point, hence the Indian name Chiquiza—bridge of gold, from which it is supposed to have derived its name. No details are given in regard to the uprising at Chiquiza but for some time past disturbances have been growing on account of the government's alleged fraudulent changing the result of the elections favoring Colonel Pando for president of Bolivia. In May last Colonel Pando was declared elected president in succession to Senor Mariano Baptista, whose term of four years expires August 6th of the present year.
